

Biographical note

Prof. Piotr Skubała – professor of biological sciences, Faculty of Natural Sciences, University of Silesia in Katowice, ecologist, acarologist. Environmental ethicist, ecological educator, nature conservationist, climate activist. "Ethic expert" at the European Commission in Brussels (HORIZON 2020 program, HORIZON-MSCA-2022), member of the Team Europe Direct expert network (European Commission), member of the State Council for Nature Protection, member of the Climate Council at the United Nations Global Compact Network Poland and Chairman of the Council for the Climate and Environmental Crisis of the University of Silesia. Author of numerous lectures, workshops and courses at his home university, other universities in Poland and abroad, for various institutions. When introducing himself, he emphasizes that he is an Earthling, a representative of placental mammals, one of the millions of species inhabiting the wonderful Earth, and is proud of the title of the greatest humanist among natural scientists, awarded by the Interdisciplinary Center for Research in Humanities Education of the University of Silesia.